TO HONOR SOLDIERS

GRAVES TO BE DECORATED WITH FLOWERS, FLAGS.

LIST IS INCREASING

Service Organizations to Place Mementos on Resting Places of 201 Civil War Veterans.

Respect to soldiers who fought in the Civil, Spanish-American and World Wars who are buried in Maryville cemeteries, will be paid by the service organizations of this city tonight and tomorrow.

A committee from the Veterans of Foreign Wars will visit the cemeteries this evening and place American flags on the graves of soldiers. Tomorrow the Boy Scouts of Maryville, under the direction of the W. R. C., will visit the cemeteries and decorate the soldier graves with flowers.

The list of soldiers who fought in the Civil War is mounting, year by year, until now a list of 201 has been compiled who have been buried in the Maryville cemeteries. The Spanish-American War and World War share alike, each represented by the bodies of six heroes. A monument has been erected to Seth Ray David, after whom the V. F. W. Post here was named.

Memorial day will be generally observed here tomorrow when the stores and offices will be closed all day and services will be held on the courthouse lawn. A 21-gun salute to departed veterans will be fired by Battery C at 2 p. m., to be followed by the program, when Judge Morte Craig of St. Joseph will give an address.

The soldiers whose graves will be decorated, are:

FLOWER SHOW RULES GIVEN

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR EXHIBITION FRIDAY.

ROCK GARDEN FEATURE

Rose, Iris and Peony Judging to Be According to Dictates of National Societies.

Final arrangements are being made for the annual flower show sponsored by the D. A. R. which will be held at the Armory, Third and Buchanan streets, Friday.

The roses, irises and peonies will be judged according to the rules recommended by the national societies of these flower growers.

It was announced today by Miss Bertha Beal, chairman of the committee in charge of the show, that a Rock Garden display from St. Joseph will be an additional feature of the show. The same display was made at a Kansas City flower show recently.

For the amateur exhibitor who will enter other flowers are for all exhibitors there suggestions and rules are issued:

The amateur who sends flowers from his garden to any flower show, hoping for ribbons, should understand the rules laid down by the National Garden Associations.

First, inform yourself as to when entries will be received and the careful marking of all exhibits with the tag on which the exhibitor's number is written.

Enter a single flower under the specimen class, not as a display.

One of the most satisfactory ways is for the beginner to enter just one perfect flower, putting it alone in a vase. (Do not put a lovely flower in a bottle or fruit jar).

When an exhibit "may contain ten per cent of some other flower" be sure not to exceed that proportion of one to ten as to quantity of flowers, not number of stems.

The points which the judges consider are:

Stem	20 per cent.
Size	15 per cent.
Color	20 per cent
Form	15 per cent
Substance	15 per cent
Foliage, on single spring flower	15 per cent
Also arrangement of flowers:
Individuality	20 per cent
Relation of bloom to container	20 per cent
Measure balance	20 per cent
Color harmony	20 per cent
Point of interest or emphasis	20 per cent

Often one flower will be found superior to many others when all the points are considered.

Cut the flower as long stemmed as possible to include the foliage.

The rule is to pick all flowers late the day before the show, putting them into large deep basins of water set out of the wind, as in a basement.

"NO STOP AT GRADUATION"

CHANCELLOR LINDLEY WARNS COLLEGE SENIORS.

"FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH"

Speaker Says We're Not Dead Until We Say We're Educated.—"Learn Before You Earn."

"We are dead the day we hang up our diplomas and say we're educated," Dr. E. H. Lindley, chancellor of the University of Kansas, said in his address to the 1928 graduates of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College at the annual commencement exercises this morning.

"The time is coming when every adult must apologize if he is not taking some work or carrying out some course of study," the chancellor declared.

In his address, on "The Fountain of Youth," the speaker brought out that the secret of youth is the spirit of learning.

"Perennial youth is open to the man who continues to develop his intellectual and esthetic interests," he declared.

Keynote Sentences.

"Learn before you earn." "One may learn as long as he lives" and "one must learn as long as he lives," were keynote sentences in Dr. Lindley's address.

"The course is so long in the school of experience that one is too old to go to work when the course is completed," the speaker pointed out.

"The formal education that we have today is, in a way, an insurance; it shortens the apprenticeship. It permits the youth to go forward without too great a chance for bankruptcy."

"We sent the child to the school master, but it is the schoolmates who educate him. A man can learn only through his own experience. There is only one kind of education, self education. . . ."

"Only in the last resort should we resort to the university of hard knocks. I take my hat off to the self-made man. But the self-made man of the future will have a hard row to hoe." The speaker pointed out the advantages of the trained man over the man who must gain all of his knowledge without the help of an education.

Not Full Training.

Then he brough out that the college educations does not give the full training; it merely prepares the youth to go higher and further than the man without the training. He quoted figures compiled by the Bell Telephone Company which reveal that the college man advances in six years to a stage which the non-college man must work fourteen years to reach. It also was pointed out that those college trained employed who constituted the upper 10 per cent scholastically attained the highest development in the company.

"It is not enough to be a graduate. The business world demands those who won complete mastery in college years."

Dr. Lindley denounced as a "vicious doctrine," the advertisement of correspondence schools that after taking one its short courses one may become an "office man with a salary of $5,000 a year." He told of the small chance of advancement for the boy who quits school at the eighth grade.

"We are in sight of a new vision of age. The most tragic waste is that among people who have passed middle age," the chancellor pointed out. Young men to furnish the action and the old men to furnish the vision and wisdom is the ideal arrangement, he believes.

"We must not be so narrow as our calling. We must study the background.

"We should vow to the end of our lives to follow the undying spirit of learning which knows no defeat."

Uel W. Lamkin, president of the college, who has been recuperating from injuries received in a motor accident, appeared this morning and introduced Chancellor Lindley as a "teacher and executive, a scholar and a gentleman."

RESCUE SHIP IS IN DANGER

NEAR AREA OF PROBABLE LOCATION OF ITALIA.

WEAK SIGNALS HEARD

Messages Thought to Come From Lost Dirigible.—Believed to Be in Northern Spitzbergen.

By Lars Hansen
Alternate Navigator of the Italia.
Written for the United Press

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, May 29.—On the heels of the first possibly authentic news of the lost dirigible Italia—report of weak radio signals from north Spitzbergen—the Citta Di Milano, first of the rescue ships, was faced with grave danger herself from jamming ice.

Tragically, but a short distance from the area whence the signals were reported to have emanated, the Citta Di Milano was blinded in a snowstorm and the ice was pressing on her steel hull with increasing force.

The experienced Norwegian pilot aboard insisted on an immediate return to Kings Bay, and declined to accept responsibility if the return journey were delayed.

Dim Signals Heard.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, May 29.—Dim wireless signals, indicating that the lost polar dirigible Italia may have landed in northern Spitzbergen, were heard at 10:20 p. m., Sunday by a seal-hunting ice-cutter steamship off Amsterdam Island.

The signals have aroused hope among the Italia's ground force here. They are the first that have been credited in any way, but even they are unconfirmed.

The ice cutter's radio was damaged by storms Sunday night, and the ship was not able sooner to communicate her clew to the possible whereabouts of the airship.

In Touch With Base Ship.

Early today the seal hunters established radio communication with the base ship Citta Di Milano, now jammed in the ice off the northwestern coast of Spitzbergen.

The Citta Di Milano prepared at once to try to disembark a squad of the Alpine Chasseurs aboard her, but a raging snowstorm so far today had made that impossible. The Chasseurs are equipped with snowshoes and skiis.

Arrangements are being made for an Amsterdam Island trapper, who knows the country well, to lead the Chasseurs in a search of the Roede Bay district.

The Citta Di Milano is off Dane's Island. Amsterdam Island is only a short distance to the north-northeastward along the Spitzbergen coast.

Winds Disrupt Radio.

Cyclonic winds disrupted radio apparatus all over the Spitzbergen district Sunday night, and communication was restored fully only last night. Kings Bay was cut off from the world for many hours.

The Citta Di Milano at 2 a. m. E. S. T., today reported that the snow-storms showed no sign of abating, and that meanwhile there had been no further news of the Italia.

Credence attached to the report from the sealer, the first that had not come indirectly from a source that might have picked up a message broadcast from a wireless station by mistake, is due to its logical possibilities.

Polar experts, working in conjunction with weather experts, have spent most of their time since the Italia's disappearance deducing her probable route and point of descent.

Probably in Spitzbergen.

The geophysical institute at Tromsoe radioed today that its final weather reports for Friday and Saturday indicated the Italia must have been wrecked on the northern coast of Spitzbergen or in New Friesland, which constitutes Spitzbergen's northeast corner.

Sudden northwesterly cyclonic storms Friday afternoon, it is believed, prob-

Schools in China Advised to Close

Burning of Fukien Christian University Last Night Believed to Have Been Incendiary.

Washington, May 29.—The American and British consulates in Foochow, China, have advised all mission schools in their district to close immediately, Consul Samuel Sobokin informed the state department today. This action followed destruction by fire last night of the Fukien Christian University at Foochow.

Sabokin believed the fire was of incendiary origin. It was interpreted here as revealing growing anti-Christian sentiment in the southeastern Chinese province of Fukien. The University property was valued at $100,000.

PREPARE FOR FARM MARCH

REPUBLICAN AGRICULTURAL LEADER ANNOUNCE COMMITTEE.

AIDS FAVORITE SONS

Movement Gains Support From Backers of Lowden, Curtis and Watson.

Chicago, May 29.—Plans for the invasion of the Republican national convention of an army of 100,000 farmers are beginning to take definite form in the Middle West.

Republican farm leaders announced that a committee representing fourteen states of the agricultural belt had been organized as the nucleus of a movement to show the delegates at Kansas City that the proposal of Governor Adam McMullen of Nebraska was more than a gesture.

The organization represents states extending from Ohio to Montana, "which have been the backbone of the Republican party since its birth," the leaders of the movement said.

Aid to Favorite Sons.

The movement was supported chiefly by followers of three favorite son candidates for the Republican presidential nomination—Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas and Senator James E. Watson of Indiana. Political observers were inclined to regard it as a plan to gain strength for them at the Kansas City convention.

A statement given out at the Lowden headquarters here, and signed by M. J. Tobin of Vinton, Ia., Lowden adherent and keynoter at the Iowa Republican state convention, explained the aims of the movement. It bore the names of committeemen from each of the fourteen states, who, it said, would go to the national convention to demand a promise of farm relief from the party.

"The farmers and their friends," the statement said, "Are aroused politically as they never have been before. They have pleaded for legislation to give them a square deal, and the fulfillment of the party's 1924 platform. Congress has passed such laws in two successive years, only to have them vetoed by the President. The same veto argument could be made against every protective tariff bill.

"Economic Square Deal."

"We are in favor of all such measures, if we are given an economic square deal. We want all sections and classes to prosper, but we want the same opportunity as other sections and other classes to prosper.

"We want the farmers to have a chance to get away from 'deep distress they have suffered' as stated in the 1924 platform.

"The party is facing the greatest crisis in its history. If Eastern party leaders will listen to the voice of the West and heed the demand for economic justice, victory will follow. But if they continue to be indifferent to the needs and rights of the Corn Belt and farming states, if they force the nomination of a candidate opposed to farm relief, no matter who he is, then defeat is invited and disaster will follow."

The committee was announced as follows:

Iowa, M. J. Tobin; Illinois, George A. Barr, Joliet; Indiana, Bert Thurman, Watson manager; Kansas, Congressman James G. Strong, Curtis manager; Nebraska, Gov. Adam McMullen or Mark Woods; Minnesota, Senator Claude M. McKensie, New Republican national committeeman; Wisconsin, Frank M. Hoyt, Milwaukee; Ohio, Clyde L. Deeds, Toledo; Missouri, James A. Finch, New Madrid; Colorado, Murray Bennett, Hotchkiss; North Dakota, F. J. Graham, Ellendale; South Dakota, S. X. Way, Watertown; Oklahoma, C. L. Stealey, Oklahoma City; Montana, W. L. Stockton, Clarkston.

SESSION TO END TODAY

CONGRESS VOTES TO ADJOURN THIS AFTERNOON.

BOULDER DAM LOSES

Senator Johnson Beaten After an All-Night Siege in Senate.—Bills Rushed Through.

Washington, May 29.—Congress will adjourn at 5:30 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, today.

The Senate passed a resolution to this effect at 11:25 a. m. today, ending a 24-hour filibuster against Boulder Dam. The vote was 46 to 35.

The House shortly thereafter passed the same resolution, 155 to 9.

The bitter Boulder Dam fight, which has lasted since 11 a. m. yesterday, was finally broken by Republican leaders in the Senate.

Rush Minor Bills Through.

After a long executive session, the Senate agreed unanimously to a proposal by Curtis to take up committee reports, conference reports, unobjected bills and other unfinished business until adjournment. Then minor legislation was rushed through without regard for usual formality.

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, leader of the Boulder Dam filibuster, apologized publicly to Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, and Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, toward whom he said he was abusive when they occupied the chair last night.

The Boulder Dam bill remained unfinished business, Johnson consenting that it be temporarily laid aside for other business.

Substitute for Yesterday's.

The new resolution was a substitute for the one killed yesterday by Vice-President Dawes who cast the deciding vote in a tie. Its adoption meant the death for this session of the Boulder Dam bill, against which the Arizona Senators, Ashurst and Hayden, conducted such a vigorous assault that they held the floor of the Senate continuously from 10:15 p. m., last night until 11:27 a .m., today.

Ashurst held the floor for 11 hours and 25 minutes before Hayden took up the filibuster at 9:40 a. m.

The resolution was put through over the protest of Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican, co-author of the Boulder Dam bill, who demanded that the Senate sit until it could exhaust the filibusterers and pass the bill.

The new scheme calls for only half an hour delay in concluding the session. The resolution which vice-president Dawes defeated yesterday provided for adjournment today at 5 p. m.

As on the vote yesterday, both Missouri senators, Reed and Hawes, voted against adjournment.

Point of Order Overruled.

Johnson made a final futile effort to ward off defeat. When Curtis presented the resolution he made a point of order that the resolution would have to lay over a day. Vice-President Dawes summarily ruled the point out of order, and an immediate roll call was ordered.

Tumult followed when Johnson at-

Three Planes, With Seven Men, Missing

Two Ships Leave for Point Barrow, Alaska.—Relief Expedition Does Likewise.

Fairbanks, Alaska, May 29.—The frozen country between Fairbanks and Point Barrow today held the secret of the fate of seven men missing in three airplanes.

Two weeks ago Noel Wien and B. H. Merrill, aviators, set out in two planes for Point Barrow with L. Virgil Hart, Jack Robertson and Charles G. Clarke.

When no word was received of their safety at Point Barrow, Matthew A. Nieninen, former Kelly Field pilot, left here last Thursday in a relief plane with Richard Peyser, radio operator, aboard.

Flyers and radio experts here were united in the opinion that Nieninen should have reached Barrow by Saturday morning at the latest, and that Peyser's radio should have been in operation five hours after the landing.

The only word to reach here regarding the Wien flight came yesterday from Wiseman. Ed Young, aviator, flew here with the news that a prospector walked into Wiseman and said he saw the two planes heading over Brooks Range May 13.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

THE REAL MEANING OF MEMORIAL DAY.

Time has a way of healing things and making sharp outlines less harsh.

The slopes of cemetery ridge, outside the town of Gettysburg, are grass-grown and peaceful. Vicksburgh is surrounded by a smiling, green parkway. The woods of Virginia's wilderness are as quiet as they were before the white men came, and there are no ruined farmhouses or burned barns between Atlanta and the sea. The Civil War has slipped far back into the past.

But today, as on every 30th of May, we call it back again; not in all its red, ugly horror, but as a rather picturesque, heroic, romantic memory. We do this, we say, in order to pay homage to the men who fought. With it we conjure up scenes from other wars; names like El Caney, Santiago and Manila Bay, somewhat overshadowed of recent years by such words as Cantigny, Belleau Wood and Montfaucon.

Yet every reverence to these things seems to be rather a surface matter. We watch the parades and listen to the bands and the orators today; but tomorrow we put it all away and resume the daily routine. Memorial Day stands out to most of us, it is to be suspected, more as a day on which we do not have to work than as a solemn time of remembrance and consecration.

We need to recapture the solemnity of the original Decoration Day. Perhaps we could do it by bringing back in all their ghastly horror the war scenes that we talk about so glibly today. We speak of Gettysburg, for instnace, and our minds picture the splendid pageant of Pickett's charge; but a man who fought at Gettysburg could give us a different picture. He could show us men disembowelled, torn asunder, trampled underfoot, run through with bayonets, smashed to bleeding fragments in that "splendid pageant;" and if we could see the picture as he sees it we might put more spirit into our observance of the day.

For the day's real significance lies in the fact that a great many thousands of men have given up their lives for the sake of that red, white and blue symbol that heads today's parades. They surrendered their youth, their hopes, their dreams, to die before their time; and they did it for a great ideal. All of the horror, all of the agony, of those battles are part of the price that was paid for the country we have today. Blood and tears and sorrow and pain helped buy the peace and prosperity of Decoration Day, 1928.

What should we do, then?

Chiefly, we could make our patriotism a little deeper and broader. We could do it by remembering the sacrifices that this day commemorates; by reminding ourselves that our heritage, as Americans, was dearly bought. The freedom and happiness we have today did not come by chance. They cost a great price. We must maintain them. We must be worthy of them.

Plan Accommodation for Farmers' Army

100,000 Marchers on Republican Convention Could Have Tents in Electric Park.

Kansas City, Mo., May 29.—Concrete plans for accommodating the proposed army of 100,000 farmers at the Republican national convention went forward here today.

Conrad H. Mann, general chairman of the local committee on arrangements for the convention, said a tent city could be located in Electric Park, formerly an amusement center here.

Mann has received telegrams from several farm leaders who said they would drop everything to lead the farmers' invasion into the convention city and demand that the party give them satisfaction on the farm relief issue.

Among those from whom assurances were received were Governor McMullen of Nebraska; Ralph Snyder, Manhattan, Kan., president of the Kansas Farmers Bureau; F. W. Murphy, Wheaton, Minn.; and Charles Hearst, of Des Moines, Ia., president of the Iowa Farmers' Bureau.

Republican Party 72 Years Old Yesterday

Bloomington, Ill., May 29.—The Republican party celebrated its 72d birthday yesterday.

It was here that Abraham Lincoln, in 1856, delivered the famous "lost speech" which so entranced reporters with its eloquence that they forgot to take notes and thereby failed to save it for posterity.

Bloomington, birthplace of the party, observed the anniversary with an appropriate program.

Rioting Convicts to Pay Death Penalty

California Jury Returns Verdict of Guilty of Murder While Armed Men Stand Quard.

Sacramento, Cal., May 29.—While twenty-four deputy sheriffs stood in the courtroom with drawn revolvers to prevent a possible break for freedom, six convicts who participated in the Thanksgiving Day riots at Folsom penitentiary were found guilty of first degree murder.

The verdict was returned at midnight and since the jury did not recommend life imprisonment, the men automatically will be sentenced to hang.

The six convicts are Roy Stokes, Tony Brown, Walter Burk, Albert Stewart, Joseph Gregg and Eugene Crosby. They were convicted of slaying George Baker, a guard, during the prison revolt.

In addition to the display of guns on the part of the deputy sheriffs, a machine gun was trained on the spectators' section when the verdict was read. Officers feared the friends of the convicts might have determined upon an attempt to liberate the prisoners if the decision went against them. There was no disorder.

Like a Treasure in An Earthen Vessel

The Rev. W. N. Dewar Draws Parallel for Spirit of Christ in Soul of Man.

Likening man to an earthen vessel and the "wonder of the indwelling Christ" as the treasure therein, the Rev. W. N. Dewar, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Sunday preached on Corinthians 2:4, which reads: "But we have this treasure in earthen vessels."

When a vessel is commonplace, the treasure it contains is set in relief, he pointed out. He contrasted a lovely pearl in an oyster shell; a precious perfume in a vase of clay; an artistic masterpiece in a commonplace frame.

"In the life of Paul, as in other lives, the dreary circumstances only set the Lord's glory in a more magnificent relief," the minister said.

"Paul shows us glimpses of this shining treasure set in this vessel of common clay. He shows us the drear, pitiless circumstances, and in the midst of them he shows us the divine treasure shining forth in abounding splendor in heavenly strength and grace."

"He so closely hemmed in as to be maimed and cramped. Circumstances crowded him, but he was not crushed. Pressed by hostile circumstances, but not dwarfed; imprisoned but not belittled. Circumstances all against him, but they did not make him peevish or mean. He had a troubled lot, but he retained his magnanimity.

"They could smash his circumstances; they could not destroy his blessed communion with his Lord. They might break the earthen vessel; they could not destroy the treasure.

"And so our troubled, tempestuous circumstances are only the earthen vessels in which we may retain the unsearchable riches of His grace. Our circumstances may grow from bad to worse, while our resources will grow from glory to glory."

Resign as Protest at D. A. R. Blacklist

Crawfordsville, Ind., May 29.—As a protest against the "blacklisting" policy of the Daughters of the American Revolution, fourteen members of the Crawfordsville chapter have submitted their resignations.

"We stand for national defense," they said in a statement, "but we decline to permit any group of women, large or small, in control of the D. A. R. to define and decide for us what constitutes a proper measure of national defnese. We strongly protest against the custom of denouncing as 'red,' 'pink' or undesirable those citizens whose personal views on this and other questions differ from those of the national leaders."

Four of the women who resigned were charter members.

The Campaign Log

MAY 29
By United Press

It was announced in Chicago that fourteen agricultural states had formed committees to work among delegates at the Republican national convention in Kansas City for a farm relief plank in the Republican platform. Supporters of Frank O. Lowden, Senator James E. Watson and Senator Charles Curtis form the committees.

Presidential primaries were underway today in West Virginia. Senator Guy D. Goff and Herbert Hoover seek the endorsement as the Republican presidential candidate and Senator James A. Reed and Governor Alfred E. Smith as the Democratic candidate.

Twelve delegates, with one half vote each, were elected and instructed to vote for Governor Alfred E. Smith at the Houston convention in a Democratic primary in the District of Columbia.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the finance committee of the Democratic national committee, urged farmers seeking farm relief to attend the Houston Democratic convention and aid in forming a farm program.

Duplication of Cost in Two Tax Boards

A Vast Lack of System in Allotment of State Funds, It Is Charged After Survey.

St. Louis, Mo., May 29.—The State Board of Equalization and the State Tax Commission were cited as a duplication of supervision resulting in increased cost of administration in a study of the cost of administration of tax agencies of the state, released for publication here today.

The report reviews the creation of the State Tax Commission in 1917 to relieve members of the State Board of Equalization of the burden of tax supervision, adding that with the functioning of the new body, expenses of the parent commission would be expected to decrease. The statement continues, "Instead of reduction, however, the board's costs, according to the auditors' reports, increased to show a growth of 223.08 per cent in the period from 1917 to 1926."

Citing this instance, the report declares that the example is general of the vast lack of system in allotment of state funds and how the legislature is compelled to appropriate vast sums of money without having data at hand so that intelligent distribution of revenue may be made.

The report sets out that the tax supervision agencies constitute "probably the most dissipated function in the state government," citing that, in addition to the duplication between the Board of Equalization and the Tax Commission, other tax supervision agencies are distributed among numerous officials.

It points out the following examples: "The state auditor, a member of the board, has charge of income tax and corporation franchise tax supervision; the state treasurer supervises collection of the inheritance tax and the county foreign insurance tax; the secretary of state supervises collection of the motor vehicle licenses and the corporation registration fees.

"This condition results in excess costs to the taxpayer," the report says, "which could be eliminated by coordination without sacrificing the right or interest of a single taxpayer.

"Attention is called to the fact that the State Board of Equalization is a constitutional body, and its elimination as the chief tax body could be effected only through constitutional amendment. The waste that results from the maintenance of the two bodies, however, could be eliminated by proper budget supervision," the report concludes.

Negro Executed at Washington.

Washington, May 29.—Philip Jackson, colored, was electrocuted here today—the first man to pay the death penalty since hanging was abolished here several years ago. Jackson was convicted of attacking a white woman on the capitol grounds.

The BIVOUAC of the DEAD

THE muffled drum's sad roll has beat
The soldier's last tattoo;
No more on life's parade shall meet
That brave and fallen few.
On Fame's eternal camping-ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And Glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead.

No answer of the foe's advance
Now swells upon the wind;
No troubled thought at midnight haunts
Of loved ones left behind;
No vision of the morrow's strife
The warrior's dream alarms;
No braying horn nor screaming fife
At dawn shall call to arms.

Their shivered swords are red with rust,
Their plumed heads are bowed;
Their haughty banner, trailed in dust,
Is now their natural shroud;
And plenteous funeral-tears have washed
The red stains from each brow,
And their proud forms, in battle gashed,
And free from anguish now.

The neighing steed, the flashing blade,
The trumpet's stirring blast;
The charge, the dreadful cannonade,
The din and shout, are past;
No war's wild note, not glory's peal,
Shall thrill with fierce delight
Those breasts that nevermore shall feel
The rapture of the fight.

Rest on, embalmed and sainted dead!
Dear as the blood you gave,
No impious footsteps here shall tread
The herbage of your grave;
Nor shall your glory be forgot
While fame her record keeps,
Or honor points the hallowed spot
Where valor proudly sleeps.

Yon minstrel's voiceless stone
In deathless song shall tell,
When many a vanquished age hath flown,
The story how ye fell.
Nor wreck, nor change, or winter's blight,
Nor Time's remorseless doom,
Shall dim one ray of holy light
That gilds your glorious tomb.

UNDER THE ROSES -- The Blue
UNDER THE LILIES -- The Grey

There's a heart-stirring thrill that comes to all of us when we watch veterans of three wars parade in honor of their immortal comrades. Aged, bearded heroes who marched home from Appomatox, grizzled soldiers who fought with Roosevelt at Santiago, young men to whom Belleau Wood is still a vivid memory—they honor their flag on Memorial Day.

And you must not forget "our boys" of other days. Let no grave go untended. Let us do honor to our honored ones.

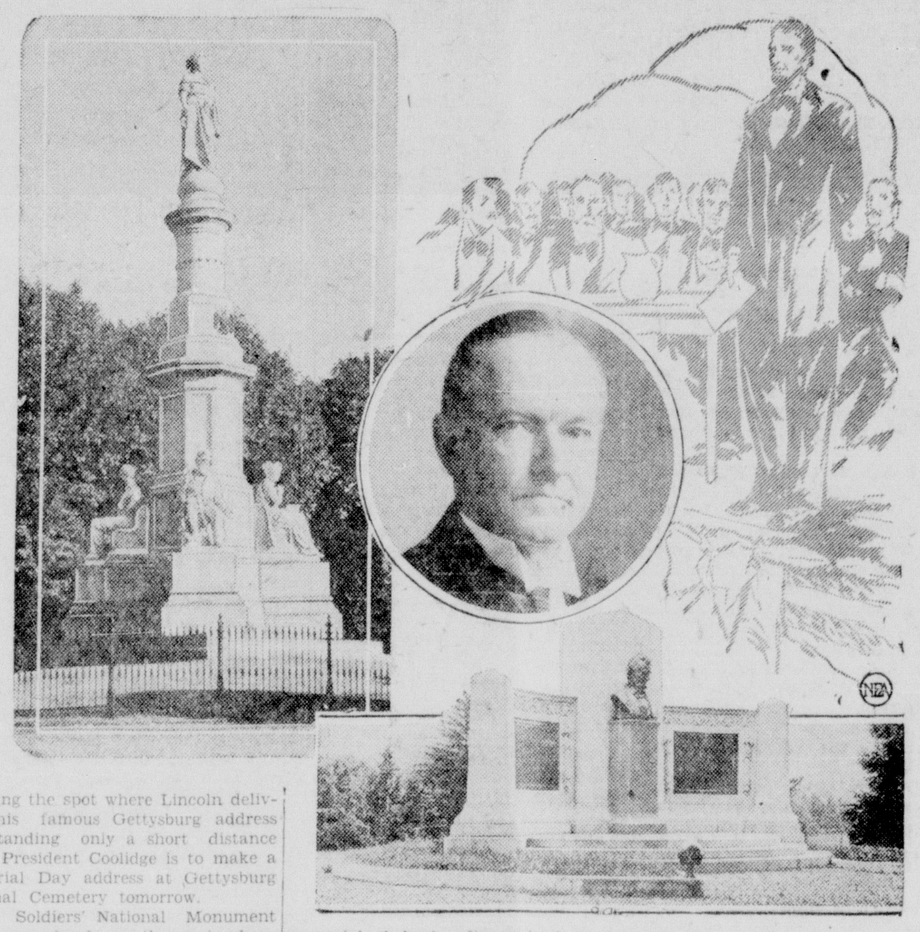
Coolidge to Speak at Gettysburg



Facing the spot where Lincoln delivered his famous Gettysburg address and standing only a short distance away, President Coolidge is to make a Memorial Day address at Gettysburg National Cemetery tomorrow.

The Soldiers' National Monument (left) now stands on the spot where stood the rude wooden platform from which Lincoln delivered his immortal oration when the cemetery was dedicated on Nov. 19, 1863. A short distance behind the rostrum chosen for Coolidge's speech is the Lincoln speech memorial (below), often mistaken as designating the spot on which the martyred president stood. The inset shows President Coolidge and the artist's sketch is taken from an old picture of Lincoln delivering his address. President Coolidge is the second president since Lincoln to speak at Gettysburg on Memorial Day, the first having been President Roosevelt, in 1904. Nearly every president since the Civil War has visited Gettysburg at one time or another during his administration.

Jewel Alumni to Probe the Charges

Executive Committee of National Association to Appoint Special Investigators.

Kansas City, May 29.—Conditions at William Jewell College will be investigated by a special committee to be named today at a meeting of the executive committee of the National Alumni Association of the College, it was reported here.

Special consideration will be given to charges that Dr. H. C. Wayman, president of the college, claimed academic degrees to which he was not entitled, Alumni chapters of St. Louis and Chicago recently voted to demand that Dr. Wayman resign.

Motor Stocks Rally at Today's Session

New York, May 29.—A brilliant rally in motor stocks featured the stock market today. The list in general was better due primarily to an easier tone in call money which held at 6 per cent, compared with the closing rate of 6½ per cent yesterday. Chrysler and Dodge preferred soared to new high ground in tremendous volume of business. Officials of both companies are in New York and it is understood the two motor units are planning a merger though neither side would confirm this report.

General Motors rose sharply after early setbacks and other pivotal issues such as U. S. steel and allied chemical participated in the rally.

Two Weapons Used in Woman's Slaying

Springfield, Mo., May 29.—Police investigating the murder of Mrs. Goldie West, 25 years old, of Richland, today expressed the belief that two guns, in the hands of two different persons, played a part in her death.

One bullet hole in the woman's skull was made by a .32 caliber shell. Another bullet, which pierced her heart, was made by the shell from a .25 caliber gun. A .25 caliber shell was found near the body along the Frisco tracks.

An autopsy revealed that the woman was an expectant mother.

Robert Henson, lover of the murdered woman, told police he saw Mrs. West get into a car with two men the night of the tragedy. He said he was several hundred feet away and could not identify the car or the men, but he was positive the woman was Mrs. West. He admitted he had an engagement with her that night but the other men "beat me to it," he said.

Mrs. Venita Allender, 20-year-old blonde who had been held since Saturday, and Ed Phillips, held with her, were released yesterday, with only Henson now being held for questioning.

SUCH smartness of color . . . such tastefulness of appointment . . . such individuality! And so easy to drive! No wonder her friends complimented her for selecting this beautiful car.

In the selection of such an intimate possession as her own motor car, she used women's inherent ability to shop. First comparing . . . then choosing.

In large purchases and in small buying . . . comparison is always very helpful. This is true in buying coffee.

Folger's Coffee is a revelation in its rich, unmatched flavor. So tempting, so delicious . . . it is truly a treat to the appetite. It makes the whole meal more interesting. Car Owned by Miss Mary Gram Is Stolen

BULLETIN

The car of Miss Mary Gram was located this afternoon by a man who lives on the Nina Gray farm. According to the report to police, the starter and ignition coil had been taken from the car. The Ford was found about four miles southeast of Maryville on a byroad.

County and police officers today were endeavoring to locate a Ford coupe which was stolen from in front of St. Mary's church last night.

The car, a 1926 model, was owned by Miss Mary Gram, who was attending a bridge party in the basement of the church. When she left to go home at 11 o'clock, her car was gone. The city police were notified last night. No trace of the automobile had been found late this morning.

Miss Gram had left the key in the car, it was said.

The state license on the car was 177-933, the motor number 13,547,334 and the city license 939.

Miss Gram thought the fact she had left her Bible in the car might influence the thieves to return the automobile.

TO DEFENSE OF WAYMAN

CAPT. CHARLES HYSLOP BACKS WILLIAM JEWELL PRESIDENT.

"ENTITLED TO A REST"

Whole Affair Is a Joke, Says Maryville Member of College Board of Trustees.

Charles Hyslop of Maryville, a trustee of William-Jewell College at Liberty, is of the opinion that H. C. Wayman, president of the Baptist college, has given his best services and should not resign nor be asked to resign over the present assertion that Wayman has claimed degrees from schools he never attended.

The Maryville trustee considers the whole affair a joke and believes it should be taken as one.

A letter which Mr. Hyslop addressed some time ago to Roy T. Marr, secretary of the Chicago Alumni Association, and one of Dr. Wayman's chief critics, was made public in the May 27 issue of the Kansas City Journal. It was not intended by Captain Hyslop that it should be made public, he said, but he indicated that it expresses his views.

This letter follows:

Maryville, Mo., April 14, 1928.

"Roy T. Marr and Co.,
Conservatory of Morals,
Windy City, Ill.
Your Majesty:

"Your little epistle addressed to the trustees of William-Jewell College of poor old Missouri should be taken as a joke, if anything, coming as it does from the most wicked city in the known world today, as against flying rumors she delights to hear. But I suppose such critics should be excused as having nothing else to do but just raise h—— at home and abroad, especially with anything that would seem to have morality or Christianity attached to it. Personally the writer knew Chicago when Fort Dearborn was it—and the garrison was able to keep things in fair shape.

"But rumor has it that the U. S. army has been called to preserve life. We are highly flattered when we consider whence our advice cometh. If you can't cool off any other way just charter a small craft. Lake Michigan is sporting grounds. Just invite the late Dr. Slaten for company. Doubtless he would delight to 'rock the boat.' Now enough of this, and more, too.

"Did it ever occur to you an old wheel horse who has served faithfully as you suggest might be entitled to a rest, even with a pension? And if a man like Wayman, laboring as he is under just such vituperation as you vouchsafe on rumors, might be entitled to a little sympathy and commendation, even if the lies hurled at him were truths instead.

"Just remember the trustees are on the inside, are held responsible for the future of the College, under God's direction in whom we trust, and he has never failed those who trust him. Neither were the trustees, most of them, raised in the woods to get scared of a screech owl or two.

"Now I am hoping you will feel better after the bath I suggest. And remember we would be delighted to welcome you back home. There is still room in old Missouri and William-Jewell too.

"Charles Hyslop.
"Trustee."

Hoover Against Big Gifts From Friends

Negro Republican Testifies That Letter Denounced Slush Funds and Buying Delegates.

Washington, May 29.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover wrote a personal letter early this year saying he would not countenance large expenditures by his friends to get presidential delegates for him, the Senate campaign investigating committee was told today.

Benjamin J. Davis, negro Republican national committeeman from Georgia, testified to this effect and also said he received $2,200 in cash in Washington early in the year from Rush Holland, former assistant U. S. Attorney General and Hoover workers.

Davis testified to spending about $1,200 in expenses, mostly in trips to Washington and added that $2,000 was spent in paying expenses of delegates to the local and state Republican conventions.

Davis said he made no copy of the Hoover letter to Arens but that his recollection was that it denounced "slush funds" and buying of delegates.

WOULD SAVE OLD CAPITAL

FORMER SEAT OF U. S. GOVERNMENT FACES DESTRUCTION.

WOMEN FIGHT FOR IT

Brick Building Erected in 1814 After British Sacked Washington.—Site Is Needed.

Washington, May 29.—The "old brick capitol," seat of the federal government from 1815 to 1819, is facing a fight for its life. The ax of the wrecker is almost poised over the historic old brick building, but its occupants, the members of the National Woman's Party, are fighting to preserve it.

The fight to prevent condemnation of the building facing on the present capitol, the site being desired for the new United States Supreme Court building, has been taken to Congress, Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, introduced and secured Senate passage of a resolution directing that condemnation proceedings now in progress be held up, and that, if the site is taken, the building, which has also been a Civil War prison, be preserved on another site.

The resolution, which must be approved by the House and President to be effective, cites in its list of "whereases" the picturesque story of the building. It describes the building as "next to Mount Vernon and the Capitol, the most historic in America," and says.

Saved Removal From District.

"It has been asserted that had it not been for this building, the Capitol would have been removed from the District of Columbia after the British destroyed the Capitol building in 1814.

"The Congress convened in said building from 1815 to 1819, and President Monroe was inaugurated there in 1817.

"It has been both a Capitol and a prison, scenes of revelry and tragedy, and connected with many other historical events.

"Every building that has been used as a Capitol of this Republic since its founding, including Independence Hall and the one at York, Pa., the one in New York City and the one at Annapolis, have been preserved by patriotic people in the interest of history and sentiment."

At hearings in condemnation proceedings, the occupants placed a $1,000,000 valuation on the property, emphasizing its history and contending that the fact that Civil War Confederate spies were executed in its back yard merely enhance its value.

Purchased By Mrs. Belmont.

There is a legend the spies hanged were buried there, and this was brought out before the condemnation hearings, which are designed to set a fair price on the property. Another legend, that the ghost of Bell Boyd, noted Confederate woman spy who was confined there, haunts its lofty rooms, adds glamor to the old building. Mrs. Surratt, who was hanged for complicity in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, was confined here for a time before her execution at the navy yard.

John Calhoun died in a room of the house. The building was purchased a few years ago by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont and given to the feminist organization for headquarters.

Rose Gouverneur Hoes, great-granddaughter of President Monroe, Representative Henry R. Rathbone of Illinois, and John Claggett Proctor, local historian, testified concerning the building's historical value, all valuing it highly as a relic of the early days of the Republic. Mrs. Hoes and Rep. Rathbone said it was the most valuable building, historically, in Washington, outside of the Capitol and the White House.

"Little Borah" Is Confident of Many Ex-Service Men

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the seventh of a series on prospective "First Ladies," by Allene Sumner, writer for Democrat-Forum and NEA Service. Today's article deals with Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of the senator from Idaho, who is mentioned as a Republican presidential aspirant.

By ALLENE SUMNER
Staff Writer for Democrat-Forum and NEA Service.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—Revelations have been made in the not so far distant past of toothpicks on the White House table. Little mention has ever been made of a cookie jar in the White House pantry.

But if Senator William E. Borah of Idaho should be our next president, the first and foremost job of the new First Lady would be to see that a White House cookie crock was well filled with sugary, cinnamony, scrunchy, raisin-topped cookies into which the president could dip the presidential paw at frequent intervals.

Mrs. William E. Borah

"For," as golden-headed little Mrs. Borah confided, "the senator just can't function without his cookie jar."

Nor would the cookie jar end the First Lady's duties. There's the little matter of onion soup, too. The senator, confides Mrs. Borah, is still searching for the perfect onion soup. He insists that he never gets it at home.

Looks for Recipes.

Wherever popular Mrs. Borah goes she is constantly on the lookout for onion soup. She thought she had found it when in Atlantic City a few weeks ago, and interviewed the hotel chef himself for the recipe. She special-delivered the recipe back to her cook in Washington, and thought she had earned her wifely laurels.

"But when I got home the senator said it wasn't quite right, either," she moaned. "I don't know what he wants—whether it's more cheese or pepper or what—but it'll be a red star day when he admits his onion soup is made right."

They call the Borahs down in Washington "Big Borah" and "Little Borah," for the possible First Lady wears 14 clothes, child size shoes and comes just about to the big senator's breast pocket.

They say that "Little Borah" winds him around her little finger, but she makes no boasts of her prowess. However, it is noted that the senator still rides the street cars, though he once permitted auto salesmen to take him to lunch. "Little Borah" said he needed his horseback riding and walk from the street car more than an auto.

The Borah apartment blooms like an exotic flower on the top floor of an old-fashioned red brick apartment house. A green and scarlet mecaw perches on a fanbacked Chinese chair in which "Little Borah" sits like a dainty bit of Chinese porcelain.

Long-legged cranes and herons of porcelain drink from table lily pools. Bits of jade and brass plaques make the fragrant orient live in this little bit of the occident.

And myriads of canaries and goldfinches fly about the sunny rooms, for "Little Borah" says it's bad enough to take birds from their forest home without cooping them up in cages. Once in a while a fluff of yellow feather settles down to drink from a green porcelain turtle bowl.

They Call Her Mother.

And into this haven of jade and brass and brocade and singing birds comes a strange procession of humanity—derelicts, boys and girls who call "Little Borah" "Aunt Mary" and claim her as their nearest relative.

"For "Little Borah," childless herself, has offered herself as mother to the world's motherless. She never turns a pleader away. The shell-shocked soldier boys of St. Elizabeth's are her special pets. Week after week, her basket filled with fruit and magazines and gay pictures, she takes the street car out to the mental hospital to help "the boys" who live for this weekly visit.

It is no longer popular or the fashion to visit war victims so long after the war, but "Little Borah's" fashions are her own—the fashion of eternal service.

Every morning the postman brings her a stack of mail from the four corners of the country—from mothers and fathers and sisters and sweethearts of other soldier boys "gone west" or missing. Sometimes a grubby dollar bill "for a boy who needs it" is tucked in the letter; sometimes a big box of nuts or vegetables or fruits come from south or west. But for the most part she goes her way alone, working where so many have forgotten.

News of her self-imposed motherhood has so traveled that other boys and girls ring her apartment bell as casualting on her Chinese brocaded sofa one quent morning caller.

A wild-eyed, wet-faced boy was sitting on her Chinese brocaded sofe one day when I was with her, begging her to get his brother out of prison. They come in at all hours of the day or night to be fed and mothered. They cal' her their "next of kin" when getting sobs, and she never denies it.

One gueses that certain conventional demands of a First Lady would not satisfy "Little Borah," who despises form and ritual and rigamarole and only asks to "get big things done."

"I am just a gypsy," she says. "I hate planning things ahead. I just want to get my hat on and run when I feel like it."

She won't pay official Washington calls.

"I can't answer my letters," she says. She has no social secretary, not even a typewriter. Every morning she sits down with her pile of letters from people she has never seen and writes with pen and ink reassurance and help.

Her father was Governor William McConnell of Idaho, later a U. S. senator. She met Senator Borah when he was campaigning for her father.

"I liked him because he seemed so big and powerful," she says.

Live Modestly.

The Borahs are said to be about the only senatorial family in Washington who live within their salary. They accept few invitations because they feel they have neither the time nor means to entertain. But no couple are so sought by the most important people, for "Little and Big Borah" are pronounced delightful because of their unpretension and genuineness.

Meeting Mrs. Borah is like a sun bath, a plunge into something warm and mellow and comforting. One hears the birds singing the minute the door bell is rung. The maid no sooner opens the door than "Little Borah" sings out the name of her expected caller and rushes to the door herself, taking coat and hat and umbrella and galoshes and insisting on the softest chair for the visitor, a cushion at the back, a cup of tea, and "just a good rest before you talk."

The eternal mother. That is "Mamie McConnell Borah," but a youthful eternal mother of golden hair, blue eyes, pink cheeks, a debutante's grace, and the chic of a Parsian model.

They call "Big Borah" "Lucky Borah," too. There's a reason.

An Improvement in Livestock and Crops

Federal Reserve Bank Review Shows Conditions Better.—Payments by Check Increase.

Kansas City, Mo., May 29.—The condition of the livestock industry and farm crops in the tenth federal reserve district has improved since the first of the month, the monthly review issued by the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, showed today.

Unfavorable weather conditions the early part of the season were compensated for in a large measure by the heavy rains this month, the report said. While farm work is slightly behind schedule, conditions are improving rapidly.

Seasonable gains were made in important lines of industrial activity, the report stated, with losses in others.

Payments by check at banks, "reflected the trend of business in thirty cities" showed increases of 2.7 per cent over last month and 8.9 over the same four weeks last year.

Honor our Dead
Memorial Day

War's sorrowful memories grow dimmer as the battles which bred them fade farther into the past.

But always on May 30 of each year we remember again with quickened pulse "the boys" who donned their country's uniform and marched away with Grant and Lee, Miles and Pershing.

On this day the soldiers of three generations parade in memory of their buddies who never returned home. Cheer the veterans. Honor their flag. Remember their comrades.

Let us bow our heads in Reverence.

By ANNE AUSTIN, AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Ward of the state orphanage since she was four, SALLY FORD is "farmed out" to CLEM CARSON the summer she is 16. He also hires DAVID NASH athlete and student, for summer work. When Carson makes remarks about David's friendship for Sally, David deals him a terrific blow.

They run away and join a carnival. David as cook's helper and Sally in a sideshow disguised as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer. In Capital City, location of the orphanage, Sally is recognized when the orphans troop in, chaperoned by a beautiful "Lady Bountiful." Sally learns from ARTHUR VAN HORNE, a handsome easterner visiting in Capital City, that the "Lady Bountiful" is ENID BARR, wife of a wealthy New York man.

One night Sally goes to the show train to visit David and returns alone through the dark streets. A car draws up beside her and Van Horne helps her in and drives her to the show grounds. He tells her that Enid Barr believes her to be Sally Ford and is working to have her returned to the orphanage. As they near the show grounds, Van Horne leans forward and in flattering tones tells Sally she has a big future as a musical comedy actress and that he wants to take her to New York and give her a year in a dramatic and dancing school.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

As long as she lived, Sally Ford would remember with shame that for one moment she was tempted by Arthur Van Horne's offer to prepare her for a stage career in New York. She had "play-acted" all her life; her heart's desire before she had met David had been to become an actress, and in that one moment when she knew that realization of her ambition lay within her grasp she wanted to stretch out her hands and seize opportunity.

Her eyes glistened; she gasped involuntarily with delight. If Van Horne had not been hasty, if he had not snatched her to him with a strangled cry of triumph as his black eyes—mocking no longer, but wide and brilliant with desire—read the effect of his words, she might have committed herself, have promised him anything. But he did touch her, and her flesh instinctively recoiled, for every nerve in her body was still a thrill with David's good-night kiss.

"No, no! Don't touch me!" she shuddered. "I won't go! You know I love David!" she wailed, covering her face with her hands. "Why won't you let me alone?"

Van laughed, settled back in his seat and crossed his arms upon his breast. "I can wait until you have your little tummy full of carnival life and of hiding from the police," he told her in his old, nonchalant way. "Incidentally I have always bemoaned the fact that conquest is so damnably easy. It is a new experience to me—this being refused, and I suspect that I'm enjoying it. Now shall I say goodnight, since we've reached the carnival lot? It's not goodby, you know, Sally. I assure you I'm admirably persistent. And remember, if Enid tries to make a nuisance of herself, you can always fly to Van. Good night, Sally, you adorable, ungrateful little wretch No kiss? Perhaps it is better so. I'm afraid I should not care for the brand of lipstick that Princess Lalla uses."

Sally did not tell David of Van Horne's offer, for on Saturday, the last day of the carnival in Capital City, the boy developed a temperature which caused Gus, who had acted as volunteer surgeon, to exclude all visitors, even Sally.

Apparently Enid Barr had been convinced of Bybee's gallant lies that little orphaned Betsey had been mistaken and that "Princess Lalla" was not Sally Ford, "playacting," but it was not until the show train was rolling out of the state in the small hours of Sunday morning that the girl dared breathe easily.

Sunday, on the show train, was a happy day, the happiest that Sally had ever known in her life. Freaks and dancers, barkers and concessionaires, all the members of that weirdly assorted family, the carnival, mingled in a joyous freedom from work and worry, singing together, reminiscing, gambling, gossiping.

The last week, except for the storm, had been an excellent one; money was free, spirits high. Even Mrs. Bybee, hovering like a mother hen over David, was good-natured, inclined to reminisce and give advice. Sally, whose talent for exquisite darning had been discovered by the women and girls, sat on the edge of David's berth, her lap full of flesh and beige and gunmetal silk stockings, her needle flying busily, her lips curved with a smile of pure delight, as she listened to the surge of laughter and song and talk. The midget, "Pitty Sing," perched on the window ledge of David's berth, a comical pair of spectacles across her infinitesimal nose, was reading aloud to David from one of her own tiny books, and David was listening, but his eyes were fixed worshipfully upon Sally, and now and again his left hand reached out and patted her busy fingers or twirled the hanging braid of her hair.

Oh, it was a happy day, and Sally was sorry to have it end. But the show was to go on. The train wheels could not click forever over the rails. Monday, with its bustle and confusion and ballyhoo and inevitable performances, lay ahead. But they were far out of the state which held Clem Carson, the orphanage, Enid Barr, Arthur Van Horne and all other menaces to freedom when the train did stop at last, on the outskirts of a town of 10,000 inhabitants.

Carnival routine had already become an old story to Sally; she no longer minded the curious stares of villagers, the crude advances of dressed-up young male "rubes." The glamor had worn off, but in its place had come a deep contentment and a sympathetic understanding, born on that happy Sunday when the relaxed carnival family had shown her its heart and hopes. She was glad to be one of them, to be earning her living by giving entertainment and happiness—fake though her crystal-gazing was—to thousands of people whose lives were blighted with monotony.

During their first week in the new territory business was even better than the Bybees had dared hope. Positively the only calamity that befell the carnival was the discovery that Babe, the fat girl, had lost five pounds, due to her loudly confessed but unrequited passion for the carnival's hero, David Nash.

On Wednesday David was permitted to get up, and that afternoon for the first time he witnessed Sally's performance as "Princess Lalla." She had become so proficient in her intuitions regarding those who sought knowledge of "past, present and future" that his smiling, amused attentiveness to her "readings" did not embarrass her.

When the show was over, she joined him proudly, her little brown-painted hands clinging to his arm, her face uptilted adoringly to his, as she pattered at his side on a tour of the midway. It was then that her dreams came true. At last she was "doing the carnival" with a "boy friend," like other girls. And David played up magnificiently, buying her hot dogs, salt water taffy, red lemonade—the two of them drinking out of twin straws from the same glass.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday morning before show time the two wandered about the village to which the carnival had journey the night before. It was heavenly to be able to walk the streets unafraid. David walked with head high, shoulders squared, unafraid to look any man in the face, and Sally could have cried with joy that he was free again, for Bybee had assured them that there was not the slightest chance of extradition on the charges which still stood against the two in their native state.

Some day, somehow the cloud against them would be lifted, and David coluld walk the streets of Capital City as proudly as he walked these village street.

With money in their pockets, they could afford to buy all the necessities and little luxuries which their enforced flight from the Carson farm had deprived them of. Sally, her face enchantingly grave and wise, chose ties and socks and shirts for David and almost forgot to bother about her own needs. And David, in another part of the village "general store," bought, blushingly but undauntedly, little pink silk brassieres and silk jersey knickers and silk stockings for the girl he loved. When she saw them she burst into tears, hugging them to her breast as if they were living, feeling things.

"Why, David, darling!" she sobbed and laughed, "I've never before in all my life had any silk underwear or a pair of silk stockings! I—I'm afraid to wear them for fear I'll spoil them when I have to wash them. Oh, the dear things! The lovely, precious things!"

"And here's something else," David said to her that Saturday morning.

They were in the still-deserted Palace of Wonders, their purchases spread out on Sally's platform.

"Give me your hand and shut your eyes," David commanded gently, with a throb of excitement in his voice.

She obeyed, but when she felt a ring being slipped upon the third finger of her left hand her eyes flew open and found a sapphire to match them. For the ring which David had bought for her was a plain loop of white gold, with a deep-blue sapphire in an old-fashioned Tiffany mounting, such as tradition has made sacred to engagement rings.

"Oh, David!" She laid her hand against her cheek, pressing the stone so hard that it left its many-faceted imprint upon her flesh. Then she had to kiss it and David had to kiss it—and her.

"I wish it could have been a diamond," David deprecated. "I suppose all girls prefer diamond engagement rings. But—"

"Oh, David, is it an engagement ring?" she breathed, then flung herself upon his breast, her hands clinging to his shoulders.

"Of course it is, precious idiot!" he laughed. Very gently but insistently he forced her face upward, so that their eyes met and clung. His were boyishly ardent but solemn, hers were misted over with tears, but brighter and bluer than the stone upon her finger. "I don't know when we can be married Sally, but—I wanted you to have a ring and to know that I'll always be thinking and planning and—oh, I can't talk! You want to be engaged don't you, Sally? You love me—enough?"

"I adore you. I love you so that I feel I am not even half a person when you're not with me. I couldn't live without you, David," she said solemnly.

They were still sitting there, talking, planning, making love shyly but ardently, when Gus, the barker, mounted the box outside the tent and began to ballyhoo for the first show of the morning.

up yet, and you've got to run the wheel for Eddie today," Sally cried in dismay, jumping to her feet and gathering up her scattered purchases and presents.

"Eleven o'clock and I'm not in make-

They were still sitting there, talking, planning, making love shyly but ardently, when Gus, the barker, mounted the box outside the tent and began to ballyhoo for the first show of the morning.

As the day wore on, with show after show drawing record crowds for a village of its size, "Princess Lalla" gazed more often into the shining blue depths of a small sapphire than into the magic depths of her crystal. But perhaps the sapphire had a magic of its own, for never had her audiences been better pleased, never had quarters been thrust so thick and fast upon her.

At half-past nine that night Gus, the barker, had not quite finished his "spiel" about the Princess Lalla, when the girl, whose eyes had been fixed trance-like upon her ring, saw a woman suddenly begin to ascend the steps to the platform. Before her startled eyes had traveled upward to the woman's face Sally knew who it was. For 12 years that big, stiffly corseted, severely dressed body had been as familiar to her as her own. Instinctively, though her blood had turned instantly to ice water in her veins, Sally's right hand closed over her left, to conceal the sapphire. Thelma had not been permitted to keep even a bit of blue glass—

A Sure Thing

The raw material from which the products of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) are made is an uncertain quantity. "Oil is where you find it!"

Science is helping the search. The torsion balance, seismograph and magnetometer may aid in locating places which hold promise of being oil bearing—but that is all. No one knows exactly where oil will be found or how much will be recovered.

Working with an uncertain source of supply has not prevented the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) from building its business with certainty.

From a raw material of uncertain location and quantity this Company has produced products of unfailing dependability, supplying them through the years with an unwavering regularity wherever and whenever needed. It has built its entire business with certainty on solid principles of integrity.

Year after year this Company has proved a satisfying source of livelihood for thousands of employes. Year after year this Company has paid to its stockholders reasonable returns on their investments. Year after year this Company has supplied products and services satisfactory to the motorists of the Middle West.

The man securing work in this organization finds open to him every opportunity to advance as warranted by his effort and ability.

The widow finds in its stock a safe investment insuring fair returns.

The motorist traveling the highway finds at its Service Stations dependable fuel and oil and expert attention.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has served the public for so many years with such definite certainty that this service is taken for granted.

At thousands of points in all parts of the ten states, the products and the services of this Company are always ready—and always the same.

The man who buys Red Crown gasoline in Kansas knows that he will get exactly the same fuel when he goes to North Dakota. Polarine or Iso-Vis mean the same thing—dependable, scientific lubrication—in ten states every day in the year.

Courtesy and thoughtfulness are found behind the sign of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as surely on a remote country road as in a great city.

Throughout all its territory, every day, in all its relations with the public, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) stands for a dependability that never varies. The people of the Middle West have learned to expect much from this Company. Their expectations, their confidence are high tributes earned by a long record of faithful service.

Hogs Lower; Sheep and Cattle Steady

Kansas City Stock Yards, May 29.—Cattle prices averaged close to steady. There were a few strong as well as weak spots. In some cases steers of medium to strong weights were slightly higher than last week and yearlings and light weight grades were not as strong as the best time last week. Stockers and feeders, though in larger supply were fully steady. Hog prices were down 10 to 15 cents, but the market closed stronger than it opened. Receipts were liberal. Sheep and lambs prices were fully steady. Wednesday, Memorial Day, will be a holiday at practically all the markets.

Receipts.

Receipts Monday were 10,000 cattle, 16,000 hogs and 6,500 sheep, compared with 8,000 cattle, 12,000 hogs and 8,000 sheep a week ago, and 11,350 cattle, 11,025 hogs and 9,700 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle.

Medium and strong weight fat steers were in better demand than last week but the yearling and light weight classes were slower sale. Some strong and weak spots developed in the trade, but the general market was quoted steady. Supplies of cattle were more evenly distributed than a week ago, when Chicago had more cattle than the other four markets combined. Here receipts were 2,000 larger than a week ago, but the increase was principally in the stocker and feeder classes. Some 1030 pound yearling steers and heifers mixed sold at $14, strong weight steers up to $13.75 and the bulk of the steers brought $12.50 to $13.50. Cows and heifers were quoted steady. Choice heifers are bringing $13.50 to $13.75; good heifers $12.50 to $13.50; choice cows $10.50 to $11.50; fair to good $8.25 to $9.50; calves $10 to $14.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Trade in stockers and feeders was active. Receipts were larger than a week ago and gave buyers a chance to catch up on some of their orders. Average quality was only fair.

Hogs.

Hog receipts, 16,000, were the largest for some time past, but the offerings were well cared for and the market closed stronger than it opened. Opening prices were 10 to 15 cents under late last week and the close was only 10 cents off. Indications are that receipts after Tuesday will be small. Wednesday will be observed as a holiday. The 170 to 240 pound hogs sold at $9.35 to $9.50; 240 to 325 pounds $9.10 to $9.45; 140 to 165 pounds $8.75 to $9.10; packing sows $8 to $8.50; stock hogs and pigs $7.50 to $8.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep and lamb prices rose 25 to 50 cents last week and Monday retained that advance under an active trade. Most of the offerings were spring lambs that sold at $17.50 to $18.25. Some wool ewes brought $8.50 to $9; shorn ewes $7.50 to $8.25 and shorn wethers $9.50 to $11.

Horses and Mules.

Trade in horses and mules continues to show a fairly good volume regardless of the lateness of the season. Prices are holding steady.

Final Grain Review.

Chicago, May 29.—Heavy selling, liquidation of long lines, caused a sharp break in wheat on the board of trade today. Corn broke also, influenced by bearish news, and oats showed net losses.

Wheat was under considerable pressure throughout the day. Heavy selling, believed to be liquidation of long lines, was credited to eastern houses. July was off two cents at one time, but at the inside support appeared and some of the loss was regained. There was considerable short covering. Trade was largely evening up in preparation for the holiday and on the possibility of showers in the northwest. The cash market, with six cars received, was ½ cent lower.

Corn eased with wheat and the market was influenced by continued favorable reports for the growing crop. Receipts were moderate, at 206 cars, and the cash market was ½ cent higher.

Oats were under pressure and showed some weakness due to favorable reports for the new crop. The cash market was ½ to 1 cent lower, with 67 cars received.

Provisions were about unchanged.

RACE CLASSIC IS TOMORROW

28 DRIVERS READY TO START IN INDIANAPOLIS EVENT.

MAY SET NEW RECORD

Mark Already Exceeded in Trial Spins —Leon Duray, Favorite, to Have No. 1 Position.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—Twenty-eight racing drivers were ready today to line up on the huge brick track here for the motor world's premier sport classic tomorrow—the 500-mile Indianapolis speedway race.

Noon today was the deadline for qualifiers, officials of the A. A. A. contest committee said. Mechanics at the track resumed work on several of the cars which have not succeeded in passing the test, but it was doubtful if any would be in shape to give a satisfactory performance by that time.

New Record Likely.

The week of trial spins has produced a growing belief that tomorrow's race will set a new speed record. Some of the entries have broken the past marks in their practice spins; and with the cars more mechanically reliable than ever before, it was believed they could duplicate the performance in the actual race.

Leon Duray, who made the fastest time ever recorded on the bowl by circling it at a 124-mile-an-hour pace last Saturday, will have No. 1 position, and is the ruling favorite. Duray, vetrean of many previous races on this track, will drive one of Harry Miller's front-drive specials.

Next to Duray will be Cliff Woodbury of Chicago, who also broke the one-lap and ten-mile records set last year by the late Frank Lockhart. He will be at the wheel of a Boyle valve special.

Have Favored Positions.

The Miller and the Boyle teams, by virtue of their fast speed in the qualifying laps, will have the favored positions in the race.

The former team will include, besides Duray, the popular Cliff Bergere, who will hold third position; Stapp and Hepburn, who are starting in the second row; Moore, in the third row, and Meyer, Batten and Litz.

On the Boyle team will be Fred Comer, in the third row, Arnold and Evans.

Fred Duesenberg, one of the country's best known racing car designers and manufacturers, will be represented by L. L. Corum, Dutch Bauman and a third man, Gleason.

De Paolo in Grandstand.

Although Pete De Paolo will have to watch the race from the grandstand because of injuries received in an accident last Saturday, his relief driver, Wilbur Shaw, was expected to take the little Italian's flying cloud out on the track and attempt to qualify before noon.

Mechanics have been working to get the car back into condition after its spill last week on the back stretch of the track while going 115 miles an hour.

Visitors flowed into Indianapolis by the thousands today, many of them lining up in cars outside the speedway grounds for choice parking spaces.

Army Football Team Will Play Stanford

Washington, May 29.—Army and Leland-Stanford University may meet in a post-season football game during the Christmas holidays, it was announced at the War Department today. The game would be played at Leland Stanford.

Secretary Davis has authorized Major General William R. Smith, superintendent of West Point Military Academy, to contract for such a game, if in his opinion, the arrangement appears desirable.

Davis reached his decision, it was said, after finding that the trip would cost the cadets only two and a half days of school work if made during the Christmas vacation.

Sport Tabloids

St. Louis, Mo., May 29.—A proposed $450,000 athletic stadium for Washington University here was approved yesterday by the executive committee of the corporation. It will be ready by September, 1929, and will seat 35,000.

Yankees Ruin Race in American League

Leaders, Routing Athletics in Five Out of Six Games, Apparently Have Pennant Sewed Up.

New York, May 29.—Leaving a trail of demoralized ball clubs behind them, the New York Yankees have ruined another perfectly good American League race in six weeks.

For the next four months, the other seven American League Clubs can hope for nothing better than second or third place.

The Yankees are swinging along at better than .100 faster clip than they did last season, which was a rout in itself. A comparison of standing follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Today	31	7	.816
May 31, 1927	28	14	.667

Beating the Athletics in five out of six games in what started as a crucial series, but ended as just another tribute to the powerful Yankee Juggernaut, the world champions demonstrated the hopelessness of the task confronting any team with pennant aspirations.

Just what the other seven clubs are up against when they go against the Yankees may be seen by checking up on what the Yankees did to Connie Mack's pet pitching staff in the six games. The statistics follow:

R	H	2B	3B	HR	TB
42	69	9	2	10	112

Scoring 42 runs in the series, or an average of seven runs a game against Grove, Walberg, Orwell, Johnson, Ehmke, Rommel, Daney, and Powers is something better than fair hitting.

Babe Ruth, Tony Lazzeri and Joe Dugan were the hitting heroes of the series. Ruth blazed the trail by getting nine hits, including three home runs, scoring six runs and driving in twelve runs. Tony Lazzeri and Joe Dugan each crashed out three homers while Lou Gehrig got one.

Sensing the inability of his club to stop the Yankees, Connie Mack already has started strengthening in an effort to postpone the inevitable. He has purchased George Earnshaw, the star right-hander of the Baltimore Orioles for $50,000 and two other pitchers, Shores and Jing Johnson. Earnshaw won 29 games and lost 11 in 1925 and won 22 and lost 14 in 1926.

Japan to Be U. S.' Next Foe in Tennis

Montreal, May 29.—Japan will meet the United States in the American zone Davis Cup final at Chicago June 1, 2, 3 as a result of eliminating Canada in the second round yesterday. Japan clinched the victory when Teizo Toba came from behind to defeat Jack Wright of Canada, 7-9, 3-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-4. The other singles match was called because of darkness with Yoshiro Ohta of Japan and Willard Crocker holding two sets each.

Japan won three matches and Canada one, Ohta and Toba winning one singles match each and the doubles. Crocker won the only match for Canada, defeating Toba.

Yesterday's hero: Pete Donohue, exholdout, pitching his first game of the season for the Cincinnati Reds beat the Chicago Cubs, 2 to 1. In addition to holding the Cubs to five hits, Donohue drove in the winning run in the seventh with a single. The victory increased the Reds' lead to two and a half games.

The New York Yankees completed the rout of the Philadelphia Athletics by winning the final game of the series 11 to 4, making it five out of six. The Yanks collected 15 hits altogether, Dugan and Lazzeri hitting their third home runs of the series.

Walter Beck, St. Louis Browns' rookie pitcher, let the Chicago White Sox down with two hits, the Browns winning, 2 to 0. Beck, late of the Tulsa Western League Club, fanned nine men.

The Washington Senators beat the Boston Red Sox, 2 to 0.

No other games were played.

BILL FOR TAX CUT IS SIGNED

PRESIDENT APPROVES LOPPING OFF OF $222,495,000.

RELIEF FOR BUSINESS

Corporation Income Levy Reduced From 13½ to 12 Per Cent.—Auto Sales Tax Off.

Washington, May 29. — President Coolidge signed the tax reduction bill lopping $222,495,000 from next year's federal revenues.

Major provisions in the measure are:

Reduction of the corporation income tax rate from 13½ to 12 per cent. Revenue loss, $123,450,000.

Repeal of the 3 per cent tax on motor car sales. Revenue loss, $66,000,000.

Increase from 75 cents to $3 in exemption on theater admissions. Revenue loss, $17,000,000.

Repeal of the cereal beverage tax and reduction of the wine tax. Revenue loss $1,000,000.

Exemptions Increased.

Increase from $20,000 to $30,000 in amount on which a 25 per cent credit is allowed for "earned income." Revenue loss, $34,500,000.

Increase from $2,000 to $3,000 in exemption granted corporations with incomes of $24,000 or less. Revenue loss $12,000,000.

Tax exemption on club dues up to $25. Revenue loss, $1,000,000.

The bill also provides for repeal of the tax on foreign-built yachts and reduction from $6 to $3 for narcotics licenses.

It does not affect tax rates on individual incomes, adjust surtax rates or provide for publicity on incomes.

The bill as signed by the President was a compromise between the original House measure, carrying a $289,000,000 reduction, and the Senate bill cutting taxes approximately $205,000,000. The treasury had asked for a cut of only $201,000,000, this figure being based on March 15 tax returns and the resulting estimated surplus.

Democrats sought a $325,000,000 cut, and the United States Chamber of Commerce held a $400,000,000 reduction was justified. Secretary of Treasury Mellon engaged in a public dispute with the chamber officials because of his latter estimate.

The bill, while fairly close to the treasury estimate, departed from the administration tax reduction program, which called for repeal of the estate tax and retention of the motor car excise tax.

Second Deficiency Bill Signed.

Washington, May 29.—The second deficiency appropriation bill carrying approximately $146,000,000 to meet part of the government's running expenses in the fiscal years of 1928 and 1929 was signed today by President Coolidge.

Postal Rate Cut Approved.

Washington, May 29. — President Coolidge signed today the $16,285,000 postal rate reduction bill.

The measure sponsored by Chairman Griest, of the House postoffice committee, reduces the rates on most classes of mail to the 1921 basis, effective July 1.

Methodists, Closing Meet, Assign Bishops

Kansas City, Mo., May 29.—Assignments of thirty-three bishops were announced at the closing session of the Methodist Episcopal conference here today. Many shifts were made in the foreign areas because of the elimination of several of these bishoprics.

All three of the newly elected bishops will have foreign charges. Bishop Raymond J. Wade of Chicago was assigned to the newly created bishop's residence in Stockholm.

Bishop James C. Baker of Urbana, Ill., was assigned to Seoul, Korea, to replace Bishop Herbert Welch, who was returned to this country and assigned to the Pittsburgh area.

Bishop Edwin F. Lee, missionary bishop was assigned to the Singapore and Manila areas, and Bishop E. L. Waldorf was reassigned to Kansas City for another quadrennium.

Secretaries Chosen.

The conference concluded a month of intensive activity with elections for the board of secretaries and editorial positions last night. Results of some of the editorial ballots were withheld until the morning session today.

The following elections to the board of secretaries were announced:

Two secretaries to the board of foreign missions, Dr. John R. Edwards and Dr. Ralph E. Diffenderfer, both of New York.

Secretary board of education, Dr. William S. Bovard, Indianapolis.

Secretary board of pensions and relief, Dr. W. B. Farmer, Indianapolis.

Business was suspended in the midst of the busy session to consider the fate of General Umberto Nobile and his crew of the Italian dirigible, Italia.

Dr. Carl Ferreri of Rome called attention to the Italia's peril.

"General Nobile and his crew are serving God's plan," he said, "by working for the extension of His kingdom."

His motion that the conference stand for a moment in silent prayer for the expedition was adopted and carried out.

FIEND MAKES CHILD VICTIM

TOLEDO POLICE SEEK A "LITTLE MAN IN BLACK."

KIDNAPED FROM BED

7-Year-Old Dorothy Selangowski Then Found on Grandfather's Porch, Brutally Murdered.

Toledo, O., May 29.—The Toledo police department was mobilized today in search for the "Little Man in Black" who stole 7-year-old Dorothy Selangowski from her bed early this morning beat and strangled her to death and left her body on the front porch at her grandfather's home.

The child's body was mutilated. Her head bore livid bruises, apparently inflicted with a hammer. Both legs bore teeth marks and physicians said had been criminally attacked. She was strangled with a pair of child's bloomers.

The only clews police had to the identity of the killer was his description—given by Dorothy's two sisters, Stella, 15, and Leona, 5, who looked on horrified while she was kidnaped,—and a blood stained sedan, found abandoned 11 squares from the Selangowski home.

Twenty minutes after Dorothy was kidnaped from her bed here today, the child's body was found on the front porch of her grandfather's house, directly across the street.

Asleep With Sisters.

A "little man dressed in black" who parked a large closed car in front of the Selangowski home, then entered the house with a passkey, is believed to be the slayer.

The child's body was found by her father.

Dorothy was sleeping in an upstairs bedroom with her two sisters, Stella, 15, and Leona, 5, when the kidnaper entered the room.

Stella awoke as the fiend seized Dorothy in his arms and fled. Stella, temporarily paralyzed by flight, could make no outcry.

The man, with Dorothy struggling in his arms, ran from the room, down the stairway and into the street.

Carried Through Back Door.

As the kidnaper fled with the child, Stella screamed. Her father was aroused and ran to the back door, through which Dorothy had been carried.

He then ran to the front of the house, where he saw a large car parked. As he ran toward the vehicle it sped away.

Sielongowski jumped into his own machine and drove to the police station. He returned to his home with a squad of officers and the search for Dorothy got under way.

The tragedy occurred just before dawn.

ably drove the Italia toward Spitzbergen, where the weight of ice encrusted on her hull, or a crash into a mountainside on the northern coast might have brought her down.

The fact that the storms are known to have been northwesterly excluded the possibility that the Italia might have been blown toward Alaska.

The only other possibility is that the Italia might have been blown southeastward toward Nova Zembla or Siberia. These possibilities had been taken into account already.

Continue to Listen.

Northern radio operators throughout the world today continued listening in an attempt to catch a signal that might indicate the position or fate of the dirigible Italia, now more than 150 hours out of Kings Bay. The craft had fuel for 72 hours.

There were many unconfirmed reports of the craft.

Stations on the Pacific coast and in Siberia heard one SOS they believed was from the Italia but Norwegian meteorologists said these signals were from the Citta Di Milano.

A Report From Baffin Bay.

The newspaper Morgen Bladet in Oslo, Norway, reported receipt of a dispatch from Copenhagen saying an SOS had been received from the craft in trouble over Baffin Bay. The report could not be confirmed in Copenhagen.

One dispatch said a sealing vessel near Frantz Josef Land believed it had intercepted Italia signals.

Meanwhile relief expeditions were prepared. The steamer Hobby waited at Tromsoe for seaplanes before starting toward Spitzenbergen. The steamer Citta Di Milano—which may be in danger owing to terrific winds and ice floes—was believed nearing the northern part of Spitzenbergen.

Communications were halted with the craft and it was believed the antennae had been wrecked. A cutter may be sent to relief of the Citta Di Milano should it be found the vessel is in danger.

Russia to Co-operate.

Italy prepared to send airplane expeditions while Russia advised the Italian consulate that she was prepared to cooperate to the fullest extent should it be found the craft had landed on soviet territory.

In New York Ceasare Sabelli, Italian flier who has been preparing for a New York to Rome flight, said he would fly to Tacoma, Wash., Tuesday night or Wednesday en route to Nome to take part in the search.

Among those who offered aid in the search either actively or in an advisory capacity are:

Raold Amundsen, Adolph Hoel, Captain George Wilkins, Lincoln Ellsworth, Captain Riiser-Larsen, Lieutenant Luetzows-Holm and the Norwegian Huntsman, Moy.

Sweden to Join in Search.

Copenhagen, Denmark, May 29. — Sweden today prepared to join in the search for the Italia.

Secretary of Defense Rosen, at Stockholm, conferred with General Amundsen, chief of the Swedish army aviation corps, regarding the possibilities of an airplane rescue expedition.

U. S. Expert Thinks Italia Safe.

Belleville, Ill., May 29.—Col. John A. Paegelow, commandant of Scott Field Army balloon base and a personal friend of General Umberto Nobile, believes that the polar dirigible Italia is safe over the Arctic cegin.

Colonel Paegelow has under his command the RS1, a dirigible of the same type as the Italia. His theory is that the ship sent distress signals while fighting the storm, then emerged from the storm area, and now is cruising about until more favorable weather will permit resumption of the journey.

SESSION TO END TODAY

tempted to have his bill made a special order for the next session of Congress.

Senator Bruce, Democrat, Maryland, refused to permit an agreement and announced he would not permit a vote now on Johnson's order.

Near the end of a ten-minute period, in which tempers flared and general disorder prevailed, Senator Robinson, Democratic floor leader, strode around the chamber, shouting "vote, vote," in such a loud voice that Bruce was drowned out. Others took up the cry and Dawes ordered the roll called.

But when the noise died down, Bruce walked down the center aisle and said: "You may shout vote until you are black in the face; I have the floor."

Talk on Random Subjects.

This forenoon sleepy-eyed members of the upper house still were talking on random subjects in the filibuster that had continued throughout the night.

At one time only two senators were in the chamber. At 2:25 a. m. a call for a quorum was issued, but not until 6:35 a. m. was Senator LaFollette, then in the chair, able to say that a quorum of 49 had answered the call. At that time only nine senators were present but Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, leader of the dam bill opposition, resumed his speechmaking.

Ashurst took the floor at 10:15 last night, but up to dawn had actually spoken only 2 hours and 20 minutes. When he resumed, he put on a green eye-shade and read lengthy edicts of the U. S. Supreme Court, regarding states rights.

Several Bills Passed.

When Johnson was momentarily absent from the chamber at 9 a. m., Republicans and Democrats reached an agreement privately to force action on more than a score of bills which came from the House yesterday. Six had been passed by unanimous consent when Johnson learned of the attempted coup and rushed into the chamber. His objections put an end to the affair, and Ashurst resumed the filibuster.

Ashurst quit at 9:40, having occupied the floor constantly for 11 hours and 25 minutes although he slept and dozed in his chair part of the time. He actually spoke more than six hours.

Ashurst did not seem exhausted by his efforts.
